Optometrist's Book Describes 200 Vocations

The first National Optometric association meeting of the 1956 fall season was held in Long Beach, Clark Holmes, chairman of the national committee on vocational problems of the presbyope, addressed the meeting. Local optometrists attending attending were Drs. Carton Way, A. F. Kline, and James Soss. Holmes is at the present time compiling information for a new book which will describe 200 different vocations in detail. This is the first of three or more volumes to be published. Holmes hopes to complete volume I the latter part of 1957. This book will make available to every Optometrist vital information concerning the visual requirements of the American working men and women.
